

Uniting our global community one mile at a time

While distance keeps us apart, uniting to reach a common goal brings us together.

And in this case the goal is to virtually race around all 25,000 miles of the globe between 17 February and 17 April, while raising £25,000 to support the THS community.

World Haemophilia Day unites the global bleeding disorders community, and for THS this is when we show the world that we are stronger together.

And together, in the lead-up to the day, we will raise awareness in the local communities, while raising funds so that we can support everyone in those communities.

So, rally the troops!

Connect with people in your local area and get as many people as you can to walk, run, swim, cycle or skip your way around the world!

How does it work?

Get your group together

Rally the troops!

Get as many people as you can so you can walk, run, swim, cycle or skip your way around the world! (That's 25,000 miles.)

Our Events Team is also happy to put you in touch with people in your local area, if you want to meet new people and increase your chances of being the first team to get around the world.

Pick a route

There are four routes around the world you can choose from, and every route has its own team – Team Blue, Team Orange, Team Yellow and Team Purple.

Register your group and join your team

Race Around the World has its own mini-site on GivePenny, where you can track you and your team's progress, as well as see how other teams are doing.
